ABOUT THE MEETING

Advanced heart failure and cardiogenic shock require coordinated implementation of critical care, mechanical circulatory support and imaging-guided electrical, coronary and structural interventions.

This meeting has been created to review and discuss the latest controversies and advances in this exciting field by putting together annually all the stakeholders.

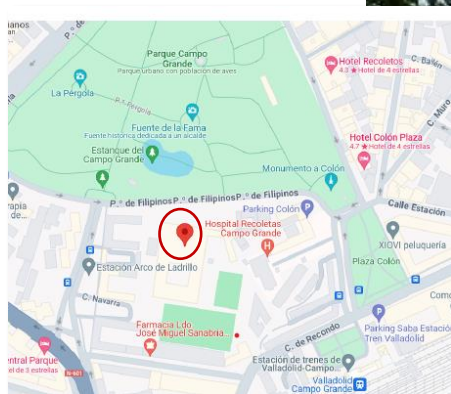

Who should join?

The ACCIS meeting is aimed at adult and pediatric specialists in cardiac interventions, heart failure and intensive care, cardiac imaging, cardiac surgery, electrophysiology, anesthesiology, radiology, nursing and any other discipline involved in congenital, structural or valvular interventions and device-based heart failure treatment. The meeting will also provide opportunities for other professionals to learn from and network with health workers.
